

ROOSEVELT, CHURCHILL NOW MAPPING NEXT MAJOR MOVE AGAINST AXIS AS A VICTORY CONFERENCE GETS UNDER WAY

Expected to Consider: Approximate Date for Launching of European Invasion—Place at Which Hitler's Fortress Shall Be Stormed—Selection of Allied Commanders for Invasion Theatres—Measures to Hold Off Japan While Blows Are Struck in Europe.

By Kingsbury Smith
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, May 12—Holding their first big victory conference of the war, President Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill today started mapping out the next major move against the Axis.

The general consensus in Washington is that the President and Mr. Churchill are now meeting to make the vital strategic plans for an Allied invasion of the European continent this summer.

Happy over the Allied triumph in Tunisia, the two leaders of the United Nations were together at the White House for their fifth wartime conference.

Churchill arrived in Washington late yesterday, accompanied by a staff of high ranking military and naval experts. He was greeted by President Roosevelt on his arrival and will be a White House guest for the duration of his visit.

The fateful decisions which the President and the British Prime Minister are expected to make at this momentous meeting are considered likely to include the following:

1. The approximate date for launching the most powerful invasion of the European continent in all history.

2. The place or places at which Adolf Hitler's European fortress shall be stormed by the mechanized might of the American, British and other Allied air, land and sea forces.

3. The selection of supreme Allied commanders for the various invasion theatres.

4. Measures to hold off Japan while the final decisive blows to crush the European end of the Axis are carried into effect.

Diplomatic sources in Washington are inclined to believe that it will take at least two or three more months to prepare for a major Allied invasion of the European continent. Therefore, July or August are seen as the earliest dates for launching the "big push" in Europe, though there may be preliminary raids and efforts to gain control of strategic island points in the Mediterranean in the meantime.

Plaque Committee To Meet in 6th Ward Tonight

With the appreciated assistance of the Superior Zinc Company's crane, the Sixth Ward Plaque flagpole, donated by the Badenhausen Corp., was hoisted and placed in position, Monday night, under the supervision of Councilman Charles G. Rathke and Oscar Herman, ably assisted by a crew of stalwart volunteers.

Prior to this operation, William J. Mack affixed the bronze eagle atop the honor roll, and Norman Hetherington and Recorder of Deeds Fred W. Randall repainted the outside of the honor roll frame and supports.

The number of names on the honor roll, as of today, totals 206, and that is the number which will appear on the program.

William J. Dougherty, general chairman, requests a banner attendance at tonight's meeting at seven o'clock in Karp's Hall, to assist in making final plans for the dedication ceremonies on Sunday at 1.30 p. m.

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Activities of Interest To All In The Various Communities

CLEANED BY SCRIBES

John Leary's back again in the Bucks County Prison because he "likes this jail better than any he's ever been in" and he's been in three others during the past three months. He's 67.

"It's more like home here than anywhere else," Leary, a former resident of Buckingham—who now signs the register, "no home"—told one of the jailers upon his arrival "back home" on Saturday night at 11 o'clock.

Leary's been a customer at the Bucks County Prison at least fifty times. He was arrested this time by Patrolman Clifford Beck of the Doylestown police, on a charge of being drunk and disorderly.

Safe and sane driving was again the order of the day on Sunday as motorists in this curtailed travel era, traveled the Bucks county highways without a single accident.

Pennsylvania Motor Police sub-stations at Doylestown and at Quakertown and South Langhorne, found their assignments exceptionally easy over the week-end, as thousands stayed home and worked in their victory gardens on the prettiest day of the year.

Restricted travel will be even more restricted, it was stated this morning as police will be asked in a few days to start a wholesale checkup on all motorists driving with B and C stickers, to ascertain whether they are driving according to regulations.

James Clymer, 47 Main street, Quakertown, received notification Friday morning that his son, Private Milton Clymer, a prisoner of Japan for the last six months, had died in an Asiatic area.

No date of his death or any details were given in the official notification received from the Japanese government, through the International Red Cross. It was stated that a letter would follow the message.

Although the attendance was quite small, a very successful sale of household articles belonging to Mary Ellen Moyer, widow of Levi Y. Moyer, was held at her home, near Pipersville, Saturday afternoon.

With but a few exceptions, all of the articles sold at good prices, according to L. Erwin Yothers, of near Plumsteadville, who had charge of the auction.

One of the articles offered was a handmade cedar chest which the late Mr. Moyer brought from his home community in Clayton, Berks county, when he located in this section over 60 years ago. After several rounds of fast bidding it was sold for $14.

The demand for plank bottom chairs was also quite noticeable. Nine of these were placed on sale, and they brought $6.50 each. Rocking chairs also sold quite readily from $1 to $4 each, and 45 cents a yard for carpet was considered an unusually good figure.

Two Students Win Art Exhibit Awards

DOYLESTOWN, May 12—Two Doylestown High students, Dorothy VanLuvanee and Lorraine Housell, have won awards in the National High School Art Exhibit at the Fine Arts Galleries, Carnegie Institute, Pittsburgh.

The exhibition in which Doylestown won honors is composed of prize-winning entries from sectional exhibitions held in the leading cities and towns of the United States.

Pastor and Wife Are Tendered A Reception

CROYDON, May 12—All organizations of Wilkison Memorial Church joined in arranging a reception for the Rev. and Mrs. George Lurwick on Saturday evening. The Rev. Lurwick was recently appointed by the Methodist Conference to serve another term as pastor of Croydon Church.

A program was presented with Ralston Hedrick as master of ceremonies. Two saxophone solos were rendered by Perry Cowgill; a piano duet by the Misses Mae Edwards and Anne Hedrick; violin solo by Ralston Hedrick, Jr., and a vocal duet by Mr. and Mrs. Nesbeth.

Each organization had its representative address words of welcome to the honored guests: Mrs. Charles Friday for the ladies aid; Miss Catherine Smith for the Young People's Association; Doran Edwards for the trustees; and Mr. Hedrick for the Sunday School. Arthur Wilkison also addressed the gathering. Slides of local scenes were shown by the Nesbeths.

Refreshments were served and a bouquet of flowers was presented to the Rev. and Mrs. Lurwick.

Customer Helps Deliver Own Coal

DOYLESTOWN, May 12—When a customer walked into the coal and lumber yards of James B. Fretz, president of the Doylestown Chamber of Commerce, today, and ordered seven tons of coal delivered at once for next winter's furnace, he got a black look from the proprietor.

Fretz's yard and office force has been badly depleted because of enlistments in the armed forces. Even his secretary, Miss Mary Butler, left for the Marine Corps Women's Reserves yesterday.

"If you help shovel the coal on the truck and deliver it, you'll get the coal today," Fretz told his customer. The man left hurriedly, returned an hour later, and went to work.

Fretz paid his customer 70 cents an hour and took it off the coal bill. Both were satisfied, and the coal was delivered the same day.

Hundreds of Nazis Already in American Prison Camps

Washington—Hundreds of captured soldiers from Germany's Afrika Korps today are already in American prison camps and thousands of other German and Italian captives are expected to soon be brought to concentration camps in this country.

Axii prisoners already in American prison camps for the duration are mostly Italians captured in the early days of the African fighting.

Gas Available for Servicemen on Furlough

Washington—Despite gas rationing, members of the armed forces on leave starting Friday can drive to the gas friend's house if she doesn't live near the street car or bus stop.

OPA announced today that service men and women on leave or furlough for three days or more will be able to qualify for a special ration up to five gallons of gas for personal demands for which other means of transportation are not available.

Allied Air Forces Run Out of Targets

Allied Headquarters in North Africa—Allied air forces ran out of targets on Cap Bon peninsula today as the Tunisian campaign neared a close and troops of the British First Army threw a ring around the entire thumb of land after occupying Cap Bon itself.

The crack troops of Lieut. Gen. A. N. Anderson's veteran Dankirk army transformed themselves into battle-grimed M. P.'s as their job turned from fighting into the far more pleasant task of herding Axis prisoners by the thousands into prison camps.

Allied aerial activity over the peninsula came to an end at last when no more Axis targets worthy of attack were to be found. The only battle-ground in all Tunisia was an area 50 miles square west of Bon Picha and north of Enfidaville, where the British Eighth Army, First Army troops and French units unleashed a final assault to force submission of Axis units still holding their ground.

Complete collapse of Nazi troops on the peninsula enabled undivided attention to be given to this last enemy pocket. The last time the air force was needed on Cap Bon peninsula was when the Axis made a futile attempt to evacuate some of its troops in JU-52 transports.

The High Command of the northwest African tactical air forces found suddenly that the British advance in the Cap Bon area was so swift that bombing had to cease lest Allied troops became endangered. The German air force was out of the air and enemy supply dumps themselves had been set afire by the retreating Nazis. So the Allied air arm turned back to the west and went to work on the Nazis north of Enfidaville.

A PROCLAMATION

THE President of the United States, as authorized by the Congressional Resolution of May 3, 1940, has proclaimed Sunday, May 16th, 1943, as "I AM AN AMERICAN DAY" and has called upon the citizens of the United States to properly observe the occasion.

Believing in the value of such community observances, to deepen our unity as "Americans All," and to develop a richer understanding of the meaning and privilege of citizenship, and

WHEREAS, during the past year our country has been strengthened through the voluntary association with us, by naturalization, of many thousands of men and women from other lands and through our youth who, by coming of age, have attained full citizenship,

I, THEREFORE, suggest that public observance of the Day be held in a manner deemed appropriate to the occasion, that the American Flag be displayed from residences and places of business and that wherever feasible programs in keeping with the significance of the day be planned.

DOYLESTOWN MAN AGAIN DECORATED

Staff Sergeant Robert J. McKeaghe Given Oak Leaf Cluster

WITH BOMBING SQUAD

DOYLESTOWN, May 12—Staff Sergeant Robert J. McKeaghe, 21, of 246 N. Main street, this borough, has been decorated for the second time within a year in the United States Army Air Corps.

His latest decoration is the Oak Leaf Cluster awarded to him several days ago "somewhere in England," where he is a member of a bombing squadron that recently "visited" Berlin. Some months ago he was awarded the Distinguished Air Medal for gallantry in action in the Pacific area when his ship was brought down.

Sgt. McKeaghe is an orphan boy who was working in a local hotel as a dish washer and assistant waiter when he enlisted right after Pearl Harbor. He was raised from the age of 14 at Father J. A. Gallen's St. Joseph's Catholic School, near Doylestown, until he was 19.

Of slight stature, weighing only 110 pounds when he enlisted, Father Gallen said yesterday that "Bob was a little bit of a fellow, but a red-hot scrapper when you got him mad."

He is a member of the 368th Bomb Squadron, 306 Bomb Group.

FIRE DAMAGES BLDG.; CHILD IS RESCUED

Albert Abramson Carries Daughter Out of Apartment as Fire Burns

STORE STOCK SPOILED

Fire last night damaged Al's Market, 217 Buckley street, to the extent of about $1,500, according to a hasty survey made by Clifford Hagerman, Chief of the Bristol Consolidated Fire Department.

The blaze, according to Chief Hagerman, originated in the cellar and was due to a smoke pipe coming loose from the furnace. Later it was said that this might not have been the cause and the pipe may have been knocked loose by the stream of water from a fire hose.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Abramson and their daughter, aged 4½, occupy the apartment in the rear and top of the building. The store room is on the first floor front.

Mrs. Abramson was visiting friends and did not learn of the fire until sometime after the firemen had been battling the blaze. Mr. Abramson was playing cards in the kitchen with some friends when the fire broke out.

2300 Lbs. of Clothing Collected For Children

Over 2,300 pounds of good, serviceable clothing were collected by the children of Bristol public schools on April 29th. The sponsoring agent was the "Save the Children Federation."

"Bundle Day" was observed by the children taking to school bundles of coats, leggings and other articles of wearing apparel for children of the United States and Great Britain, with Switzerland acting as the distributing agent in some instances.

The clothing was shipped to New York where it was processed for shipment abroad.

The response was very gratifying to the school authorities; and the children, eager to aid other children in less fortunate circumstances than themselves, made a success of the campaign.

If You've Enjoyed A Book, Donate It To Men In Service

Is there a good book in your home—one you have thoroughly enjoyed, one that has inspired you, given you new zest for life, set you to chuckling, or has proved highly entertaining and instructive?

Pass it along—to the soldiers, sailors, marines, coast guardsmen.

At their lonely outposts it will help to pass the dreary and tiresome hours. Many a lad will stretch out on his camp cot for a period of relaxation after a hard day—your book in hand. Those men on the high seas, passing through treacherous waters, will be aided in forgetting to an extent the ever-present dangers.

Be generous! Be thoughtful! Make that book gift one of your prized books. You have enjoyed it. Now help keep up the morale of those fellows who are fighting your battles.

They've sacrificed countless things, and are ready to give their all if needs be.

Your book will help—it is your contribution toward Victory!

The Victory Book Drive is sponsored by the American Red Cross. Contact the Bristol Branch office of the Red Cross, or telephone Mrs. Max Seigel.

Gifts Given Mothers At Newportville Church

NEWPORTVILLE, May 12—Mother's Day was observed in the Sunday School of Newportville Community Church—Presbyterian, under direction of the Men's Bible Class. Fred Kohler, president of the class, was in charge. About a dozen cradle roll babies and their parents were present, and the attendance was 162.

The opening prayer was given by one of the mothers, Mrs. James Barclay. Later, Mrs. Herman Becker, president of Ladies Bible Class, presented Mrs. Barclay, teacher, with a gift on behalf of the class.

Twenty-three men of the church sang "Onward Christian Soldiers," led by C. Bentley Collins. One young man in service, Jacob Steublein, aerial gunner, located in Texas and here on furlough, stood at attention on the platform while silent prayer was offered for all the boys in service, followed by prayer by Julius Scheidte, student pastor of the church.

The primary department, under direction of Mrs. Raymond Dewees, sang two songs; and Mr. Scheidte, in the absence of C. Bentley White, gave a brief talk to the youngsters. Many plants decorated the platform, and were given out by Myron Mattocks as follows: to the oldest mother with a boy in service, Mrs. Fred Cotshott; to Miss Elva Brambley in memory of her mother who died in February; to the oldest mother, Mrs. William Beck; to the newest mother, Mrs. Raymond Perpete; and to the mother with most boys in service, Mrs. Fred Kohler, having three in the Navy. All other mothers were invited to the platform, and every mother present received a plant.

Hanging on the wall were two new plaques, one for the men in service, given by the Junior Fellowship; the other a new cradle roll, given by Mr. and Mrs. Myron Mattocks in memory of their baby who died a few years ago.

Dr. Charles N. Scott To Speak at Chalfont

CHALFONT, May 12—Dr. Charles N. Scott, of China, father of Betty Stamm, who with her husband, John Stamm, was slain in Japan several years ago, will deliver the address at Forest Park here Sunday, when "I Am An American Day" will be observed.

There will be a parade before the address in the park, with fire companies, Girl and Boy Scouts, and service clubs participating.

27 FORMER MEMBERS OF H. S. BAND IN SERVICE

They Are Doing Duty With U. S. Armed Forces In Various Sections

TWO ARE IN BANDS

Twenty-seven former members of Bristol high school band are now in various branches of the armed services, and of the group two are playing in service bands, with two others planning to gain berths in such musical organizations. One of the musicians is a bugler.

Now wearing navy blue are: Raymond Eckert, Edward Newman, Albert Moss, Robert Lemon, Robert Orrino, Bentley Chapin, William Hendrickson, James Fry, Richard Monus, Charles Fry, and Edwin DeVoe. Of the group Eckert has played in a navy band, and Moss and DeVoe hope to do likewise. Hendrickson is a bugler.

In the army are: "Ted" Krushinsky, Albert DeVoe, Albert Tomlinson, Joseph DiLasio, Leonard Rafferty, Emedio Caucei, Richard Casimir, Alfred Rogers, Jasper Mangiaricini, Joseph Morronne. The first named, Krushinsky, is already playing in an army band. James VanZant and Louis Rotunno are in the army air corps.

John Brambley and Richard Cherubini are in the U. S. Coast Guard; and Roy Bailey and Richard Latta are members of the Marine Corps.

On Friday evening at the Bristol high school music festival a service flag will be presented to the band in honor of these 27 young men.

Miss Dorothy Lovett Is Honored By Fellowship

EMILIE, May 12—The Youth Fellowship of Emilie Methodist Church conducted a business meeting Friday evening at the home of the Misses Eleanor and Edith Whitlock, Fallsington.

A social time was enjoyed in honor of Miss Dorothy Lovett's birthday anniversary.

Those attending: the Misses Harriet Lodge, Emily Sauers, Ruth Appenzeller, Eleanor and Edith Whitlock, Fallsington; and the Misses Dorothy Lovett, Doris Baker and Martha Praul, Emilie.

Miss Lovett received several lovely gifts.

THREE SECTIONS, BRISTOL TOWNSHIP PLAN PROGRAMS

To Mark "I Am An American" Day; Observations on Sunday

LIST THE SPEAKERS

Music, Allegiance Pledge, Addresses Are Included

Sunday, May 16th, is set aside by Presidential proclamation as "I Am An American" Day.

Bristol Township will observe the day with special programs in three areas—Croydon, Newportville and Edgely, under direction of Bristol Township Council of Defense.

Croydon will hold its meeting at Croydon public school at two p. m.; Newportville at Newportville Community Church—Presbyterian, at 2.30 p. m.; Edgely in conjunction with Edgely Civic Association in dedication of an honor roll for boys of that community in the armed forces. The honor roll will be unveiled at Haines Road and Edgely avenue, Edgely, the program starting at four p. m.

Prominent speakers have been secured. Croydon will have the Hon. Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville; Newportville, C. Burnley White, Cornwells Heights; and Edgely, a prominent army officer. Bands, orchestras and choral groups will lead community singing of patriotic numbers; the pledge of allegiance to the American flag will be given; and new citizens by virtue of naturalization and new voters, those attaining the age of 21, will make short speeches as to what American citizenship means to them.

The committee in charge states this is a fine opportunity for real American citizens to show how much it means to them to live in the land of the free and the home of the brave. "Will you be one of the United States grateful citizens present at one or more of these meetings?" the committee asks.

Hon. Wm. S. Livengood To Speak at Court House

DOYLESTOWN, May 12—One of Pennsylvania's most eloquent public speakers, Secretary of Internal Affairs William S. Livengood, Jr., will be the speaker Sunday afternoon at the Bucks County Court House, when "I Am An American Day" will be observed, at 2 p. m.

A hero of the Guadalcanal campaign will also be a guest speaker. There will be music by the North Penn A Capella Chorus.

Wonders of Science Are Of Interest To Pupils

Dr. Harry White presented an electrical program, "Light and Wonders of Science," in an assembly program at the Bristol high school yesterday afternoon, which was sponsored by the Fathers' Association of Bristol public schools.

He discussed the developing of light from the torch, candle to the electric lamp. He also demonstrated the photograph of electricity changing music into light and back to music.

The two types of microphones were demonstrated, the speaking type, and diaphragm or stomach microphone which is used in high altitudes.

The automatic fire control for guns, with sound causing the guns to aim and fire themselves, was discussed.

Lastly, Mr. White gave the ultra-violet ray demonstration.

TO HONOR MOTHERS

A Mother's Day party will be held at 6.30 p. m. tomorrow in the K. of C. home, followed by a business meeting. The affair is sponsored by the ways and means committee of the Catholic Daughters of America.

TREES GO TO WAR

When this war is ended the United States will have 50,000,000 fewer trees than it had the morning of Pearl Harbor, it is predicted. By the end of 1942 20,000,000 trees had been cut down to go into the war effort.

The American Forestry Association estimates that five mature trees are required for every man in the armed service—one tree for living quarters, mess hall, chapel and recreational facilities, one for crates in which to ship equipment and three trees for making equipment, high explosives, training planes, shipyards, factories and other items. Not all of these trees are being cut in the United States, but most of them are.

To make it easier to visualize how many trees have already been cut down, it is explained that were the 20,000,000 that have been felled spaced ten feet apart and ten abreast they would form a shelter belt from New York to San Francisco.

It becomes the duty, in view of the tremendous toll being taken of the nation's forests, for all landowners who can do so to plant trees. Many farms and ranches have long-neglected ravines that are covered with weeds and brush. Hillsides too steep for cultivation, that provide little pasture grass, can be turned into wood lots.

Not everyone can make a weapon, shoulder a rifle or fly a plane, but everyone who has a bit of waste land has the opportunity to render his country a service by planting trees to help replace the millions now being sacrificed to war.

NIGHT RAIDS BIG HELP

An RAF spokesman in London announces that British and American raiders are keeping four of every five German night fighters pinned to Western Europe—despite acute need of German planes on the Russian front and in North Africa.

Hitherto comparatively little emphasis has been placed on the effect on distant fighting fronts of the night bombing of Germany, a type of aerial attack about which American military authorities and those of Britain once disagreed, but which American Air Force daylight-bombing enthusiasts now recognize as distinctly useful.

As American, British and French forces draw the noose tighter in Tunisia, the importance of diversion of German flying strength becomes more obvious. No less an authority than Josef Stalin—who previously was inclined to be somewhat snooty about the Anglo-American war effort in the air and elsewhere—has conceded that the night raids on Germany are helping to win the war.

In due time, the daylight bombing in which American bombers specialize may have an equal or even greater effect on the course of the war. But as of today full credit must be given the night bombers. They not only are raising Cain with German war production. They also are actually helping United Nations armies on all fronts.

FASHION PARADE

By Milo Anderson
(Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing for International News Service)
HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—There is no better way to describe the new feeling in clothes than "refined elegance." Ladies, for a change, look like ladies and less like women done up in men's suits or little sister's pinnafoles. The smartest women, however, are using a restraining hand on the feminine motif, and are playing down the ruffles.

The perfect example of this refined elegance was Irene Dunne at the Brown Derby last week. The actress wore a long sleeved, fitted jacket of surah in butterscotch plaid. The lapels were faced with wood brown, which was the color of the 5-button closing. A tailored umbrella matched the jacket. Skirt, gloves and shoes were of wood brown. A tiny brown straw sailor tilted over her forehead, backed with soft-colored fairy flowers.

Ida Lupino, star of Warner Bros. "The Hard Way," was equally chic at the Mue. Chiang Kai-Shek reception. In a two-piece dress of black rayon crepe, dotted with crisp white, the star wore a black straw tilted sailor, briefly veiled, and carried all-black accessories. The dress was fastened off-center with two bows of fresh green grosgrain ribbon.

At the Gershwine Concert Julie Bishop wore a subdued, flattering short formal of black crepe. The V-neck sloped from the shoulders with scalloped edges flattering against the simple two strand pearls she wore. The skirt flared a V-yoke, and was softly shirred. The actress, next seen in Warner Bros. "Action in the North Atlantic," wore a small evening hat of pleated tulle, with a bouquet of Cecil Brunner roses nestled in the crown.

In a lightweight mink wool, Linda Darnell stole honors at luncheon at Romanoff's. The ensemble was casual and youthful and featured a band trimmed

V Mail

When a soldier or a sailor is low in spirits there is nothing that will cheer him up as much as a letter from home, so the War and Navy Departments have devised a method for getting "the word" to its fighting men with the greatest dispatch. This is the microfilm method of transmitting letters, known to all of us as V-mail.

Any news from home is bound to please our soldiers and our sailors but the news they want to have most is the news from our production front and news that we are winning our fight against inflation by our savings and investment in War Bonds.

body, soft front fullness in the skirt, and a paneled back. Topping the dress was a collarless jacket, semi-fitted and brief. Black accessories were smart.

ture, and if weather conditions permit, hundreds of acres of corn will be planted in the county this week. It has been stated by Mr. Green-awalt that a steady rain will give the grasses and grains a good start. Most of the potato planting in the county has been completed. The warm weather over the week-end caused the asparagus on the large farms in the lower part of the county to develop quite rapidly, and the peak of the cutting in that section, it is expected, will get underway the latter part of this week. This peak cutting will continue for at least three weeks, although asparagus cutting will continue on a smaller scale until later in June.

THAT MAN IS MINE by May Christie

SYNOPSIS

Ann Foster, salesgirl at "Mark's Park Avenue" in New York City, is transferred to the Miami Beach branch of that store, where the manager, impressed with her unusual beauty, engages her as a model. Julia, her practical-minded sister, an airline stewardess on the New York-Miami run, encourages her to marry millionaire Vince Ogden, but Ann does not love him. At Mrs. Avery Willard's War Relief Tea, Ann meets Jim Brent, handsome pilot officer, engaged in training cadets at a nearby airfield. From Vince she learns that Jim is teaching Lotus Willard to fly her own plane and the consensus is he will supplant Hank Bruger, society hanger-on, in the frivolous Mrs. Willard's life. Piloted by Vince, an Hank, Ann sells lottery tickets on a beautiful gown donated by her store. Vince wins the gown and presents it to Ann who, overhearing a dowager's catty remark, announces she will reauction the gown for the War Relief. Vince outbids everyone—this time giving the frock to Julia. The tea over, he invites the crowd to dine aboard his yacht, "The Pelican." Ann declines, pleading a headache. Alone in his apartment after Julia's departure, she regrets her hasty decision, especially since learning Jim had accepted Vince's invitation. At Julia's behest, Jim calls and persuades Ann to join the party which, following dinner, had progressed to "The Bellevue" for dancing. Arriving there, they learn the others have gone on to "The Raton," a fashionable gambling club. The ride to the club with Jim was all too brief for Ann. Hank Bruger begs Ann to be his mascot at the roulette table, promising her half his winnings.

CHAPTER TEN

She saw Hank place a ten-dollar chip somewhere near a line between two numbers. Quantities of people were thrusting chips under other people's elbows, for the crowd was three-deep at the roulette table. The wheel stopped. The croupier called the winning number. Although Ann couldn't now see the envious squint there were several bets on it and as the croupier pushed over a pile of winnings on it, Hank swooped down, gathering in a great handful of $10 chips from that number.

She saw the handful and thinking of her half-share as his mascot, she was thrilled. Assuredly, this was her lucky day! She didn't see the second croupier give Hank a hard look as the latter slipped his $350 winnings into his pocket, nor did she see this same croupier nod to a thick-set man who didn't look as if he belonged in a casino.

But the quick moving eyes of Hank had observed that ominous nod and with a flick of his hand, he flipped the pile of chips to Ann. She took them—they'd divide later. She put them in her handbag just as the heavy-set stranger came around the table.

He didn't directly approach them, but spoke to a casino attendant, who at once quietly tapped Hank on the shoulder.

The manager would like to see you and the young lady in his office," the attendant suavely said.

Ann was surprised, but not alarmed. She did notice that a thick-set man was following them as they entered the manager's office. Also that Hank looked greatly worried.

A secretary looked oddly up at them as they crossed the outer office to the inner sanctum, where the thick-set man, entering with them, closed the door. Addressing the manager, who was sitting at his desk in evening clothes, he said: "Mr. Garfield, I have to report that 'this gentleman,' turning gravely towards Hank—'withdrew a winning bet of $350 that belonged to another player, from Table Number Three. On seeing his action was discovered, he passed the chips to his confederate here—this young lady,' he stated at Ann. 'May I have your bag, Miss?'"

Stunned, she handed it over. The man opened it, producing chips totaling $350—and said to the manager: "Here is the evidence, sir."

"This is an outrage! You are mistaken!" Hank declared, his face ghastly white.

"There is no mistake," said the detective coldly, "you placed your bet on Number 34, while the winning number was 35. It is no job in the casino to watch the exact placing of the bets."

Ann gasped, "But you are wrong! We were partners. He didn't do a thing! He only gave me fifty fifty cents and I have the chips to prove it!"

"I have no doubt you are partners," said the detective, "but the manager, who had risen to confront them, said stiffly, "Our men are highly trained never to make mistakes. I have no alternative but to hold you here until the 'awful owner of the winnings decides if charges shall be preferred against you." He then turned to the detective, ordering briefly: "Bring the other croupier and the defrauded party here, please."

Trembling in horror at her predicament and only vaguely hearing Hank's protestations, Ann shrank back as the detective returned with the croupier, and Jim Brent!

Ann was stunned at sight of Jim. In the ghastly moment of silence, ere it was broken by the detective, she felt she would faint, there in the office of the manager of the casino.

She hadn't seen Jim place his $10 chip on the winning number, so thick had been the crowd round the roulette table. She hadn't even seen the winning square!

And now it was the irony of fate that he, of all people, should be brought here by the detective to decide whether or not he should prosecute her, and Hank, for a theft of which she was completely innocent!

The detective broke that moment of searing silence, addressing Jim. He said: "Over at Table Three a few minutes ago, I saw you place a $10 chip on Number 33, sir. Isn't that correct?"

"I did," Jim admitted.

"It turned out to be the winning number, as you know?"

"Why not? I thought the winning number was 35. Someone spoke to me just as the wheel was stopping, and so I turned my bet back to the table—I wasn't close to it, anyhow, and as I turned away to answer this acquaintance, others pushed into my place, and in the hubbub all that I clearly heard was the croupier call: 'three.' Thinking therefore that I had lost," explained Jim, "I did not go back to that table."

"You were mistaken," the detective said, "you only heard a part of the winning number, which, I repeat was Number 33, on which you had placed your bet. Your rightful winnings were therefore $350—here he swung round on Hank and Ann—"which this lady and gentleman pocketed for themselves, sir. They have confessed to being partners," he added meaningly.

"I saw it all, too," said the second croupier.

Ann opened her lips to defend herself, to explain. But the only sound she uttered was a gasp. Jim saw that she was trembling and deathly pale. Hank had turned a sickly green. He managed to stammer: "This is outrageous!"

"No," said the detective coldly, "you and your partner placed your bet on 34, as you are well aware. I have, sir," turning back to Jim, "just removed

CHICAGO CUBS ARE ONCE MORE IN THE
BARTER BUSINESS

Negotiate a Trade for Lou Novikoff, They Announce

OFTIMES ARE WRONG

All They Can Show For It
Is Passeau, Warneke, and 7th Place

By Davis J. Walsh
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)
CHICAGO, May 12 — (INS) —
There being no reason needlessly to alarm the constituents, the Chicago Cubs went all the way to New York Monday before announcing that they were going to solve everything.

They were, they said, about to negotiate a trade for Lou Novikoff, the grass materialist who does not want the $9.62 weekly raise offered him for hitting .300 last year. So they're going to trade the loafer to any one of four clubs, just to show him they're not men to be trifled with.

"Can anybody," we demanded, at this point, "remember a trade where the Cubs got the better of it?"

"Why, yes," said a veteran copy reader, mildly. "I think they got the better of the Harry Steinfield deal."

That did it, of course. We had asked a question, and been properly answered. The Cubs obviously got the better of the Harry Steinfield deal because it was right after this that they began winning all those pennants in 1906, 1907, 1908 and 1910, aided by Tinker to Evers to Chance, plus three fingers of Mordcau Brown.

For further information, see the Smithsonian Institute but, anyhow, that's why the Cubs did a nice thing yesterday.

They at least had the good taste to leave the town before agitating everybody with the announcement that once again were they venturing into the marts of barter with the harpies and horsetraders of what some incense once called the national pastime. For here the Cubs of recent and intermediate date have been a patsy for practically everybody.

They've been so flagrantly and consistently wrong, in fact, that one feels almost a sense of indecency in mentioning it, as though one were the sort who handles snide gossip in low company and invariably shoots his peasant before the rise. Nonetheless, we've got to mention that all they now have to show for this is Claude Passeau, Lon Warneke and a club
that's in seventh place.

Warneke, of course, had to be gotten back from St. Louis after being sent there for Rip Collins and Leroy Parmelee, neither of whom is now in baseball insofar as we know.

Passeau came here from the Phillies for a couple of stuffed bosoms and Kirby Higbe, who promptly went amok and did not stop until he'd helped pitch the Dodgers into the 1941 championship.

There was the time, too, when the Cubs simply had to have Don Hurst, first baseman. So they sent the Phillies Dolph Camilli, who's still a first baseman. So good, indeed, that he was named the league's most valuable player two years ago.

As for Hurst, he disappeared hurriedly, and withal happily, and hasn't been heard of or from in a considerable number of years. The Cubs also had to have Chuck Klein from the Phillies.

They were warned that he wouldn't prosper at Wrigley Field, where it seems his visiting batting average had been pretty pale and insipid. But they had to have him anyhow—possibly because, in our impression, they'd originally "had"
him in the minor leagues.

If we're wrong about that, you can bring action before the Bureau of Weights and Measures, but Klein anyhow wasn't even a regular here and, in time, had to be given back to the Phillies; this time, because the Cubs simply had to have pitcher Carl Davis. But he also laid a monumental egg, and was allowed to figure in the notorious Dizzy Dean $185,000 prank.

which common decency forbids us to further mention in any detail.

Davis then wound up helping to pitch the Dodgers into that same pennant that Kirby Higbe helped pitch them into.

Then there's Larry French, who went to Brooklyn for the waiver price and promptly won 12 games before he lost any. And Bill Herman who went to Brooklyn for Charley Gilbert (of all people), not to forget Bill Jurgens going to the Giants for Dick Bartell, the result being that both are now with the Giants. But why go on?

LEAGUE TO OPEN IF
WEATHER PERMITS

The opening game of the Bristol Suburban League scheduled for last night was called off because of rain. Weather permitting, the season will open tonight with the Hunter team meeting Voltz-Texaco on the Rohm and Haas field.

It is most likely that "Loggie" Bragg will toss them in for the Voltz-men with Tony Rotundo doing the throwing for the munition workers. "Freddie" Barbetta will hold up Rotundo behind the plate while the backstop for the Voltz boys will be Barney Ludwig.

In the list of eligible players published last night, the name of Parker Schumacher, of the Voltz-Texaco team, was omitted.

Tonight's game is scheduled to start at 6.30 o'clock.

quarters said American and French forces had so far counted 35,913 prisoners captured in northeastern Tunisia, with roughly six Germans to every Italian. A spokesman said in addition that a "most impressive" haul of enemy equipment was taken intact in that theater, including tanks and big guns.

American officials in San Juan, Puerto Rico, meanwhile characterized as "pure baloney" German radio reports that American warships were steaming toward Martinique and Guadeloupe, French island possessions in the Caribbean governed by pro-Vichy Admiral Georges Robert.

A British radio announcement that a West Indian detachment was en route to Dominica, British island between Martinique and Guadaloupe, was said to have nothing to do with Admiral Robert's refusal to co-operate with the Allies.

These two developments, however, kept the spotlight on Martinique, where the French aircraft carrier Bearn and nine oil tankers, sought by the United States, are berthed.

Fighting on the long Russian front brought no major changes in the battlelines, although Moscow announced further gains in the south, with the Soviets seizing new advantageous positions before Novorossisk.

In the Leningrad area two companies of German infantry were slain and nine pillboxes and 21 dugouts destroyed. On the central front another Nazi infantry company was annihilated. In the Volk-hov sector artillery fire destroyed seven German pillboxes and six dugouts. In the Sevsk region eight more pillboxes were demolished.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced new aerial attacks on Japanese outposts north of Australia.

Allied bombers set fires visible 60 miles in a dawn attack on an enemy airfield at Rabaul, New Britain.
Others raided two enemy airdromes in Timor island and two more on New Britain.

Nine Japanese planes caused some damage and casualties in a raid on an Allied outpost in Dutch New Guinea. Three enemy float planes attempting to attack Allied shipping north of Australia were dispersed and one shot down by a lonely Allied fighter plane.

SERGEANT PAT OF RADIO PATROL

OKAY, Frank Allman
we'll keep 'em humming!

This illustration does not show any actual scene or people.

HE'S A SERGEANT UNDER FIRE

Frank E. Allman, of P.E.'s Richmond Station, is now a Sergeant with the Army Medical Corps in North Africa. Frank, an expert golfer and star performer in other sports, said in his last letter, "There isn't room enough here for that guy Rommel and me, and I'm not leaving." In addition to Frank—his father, a former circus clown, and his brother, George, now a Sergeant in the Air Force, also are P.E. employees.

ONE WAY YOU CAN HELP

Safeguarding piers and ships at the Port of Philadelphia against carelessness and sabotage is vital war duty. The United States Coast Guard Volunteer Port Security Force is doing this job. More than 1200 men are serving, without pay, on a part-time basis—at least six hours on every sixth day. Thus, many regular Coast Guardsmen can be released for active duty elsewhere. If you are not subject to draft call, apply at the Recruiting Office, Room 741, Land Title Building, Philadelphia.
